The passing out ceremony of the 23rd batch of Graduate Marine Engineers (GME) cadets of Anglo Eastern Maritime Academy (AEMA) was an unforgettable event that will be remembered by the cadets and all those who attended the ceremony for a long time.

The ceremony was conducted at the lush green AEMA campus at Karjat on 30th June.

Mr Girish Sreeraman, Country Area Manager DNV GL, India, was the Chief Guest on the occasion. Mr Karthik Nithyanandam, Head of PrimeServ Diesel India & MD of MAN Diesel & Turbo Lanka Pvt. Ltd. and Mr Homiar S Poonawala,

Mr Francis Akkara

Fleet Director Technical, AESM were the Guests of Honour. The event was graced by Mr Francis Akkara, Vice Principal & Assistant Director, AEMTC and several senior managers from Anglo Eastern Group.

The chief guest and other distinguished members were taken through the Academic block and showed various projects which gave them a glimpse of the training imparted in the academy.

Parents, Cadets, Faculty members and staff gathered in the auditorium exuded an atmosphere of pride, happiness and joy. Cadet Abhishek Vashisth hosted the entire event, ably supported by his fellow cadets.

Mr Mahesh Subramanian

Addressing the Cadets, Mr Sreeraman, said, "AEMA has imparted the right skill and knowledge required, but its upto you to take it ahead. Develop the right attitude, enhance your skill and deliver your best every time onboard – that's the key to success."

Capt. Bhamra, Faculty member of AEMA told the students that hard work and dedicatedness was the key to success.

Mr Akarra stressed on the need and importance of having social interaction onboard with the peers. He iterated, " Social interaction helps you combat stress and mental ill-health. It also comes to rescue at the times of crisis, distress and personal issues."

Mr Karthik Nithyanandam advised the students to "Keep up with your learning. The industry is constantly undergoing change and it's important to be abreast with it in order to survive and sustain,"

Mr Homiar S Poonawala appreciated the energy levels of the students at AEMA and highlighted the need to have good teamwork on board. .

Prize distribution ceremony was conducted, where the cadets of GME23 batch were appreciated for their academic, work shop and other skills.

The event concluded with a group photograph followed by the Vote of thanks by Cadet Piyush Sharma.

AEMA's training programme inculcates in cadets the right sense of responsibility towards the profession. During the rigorous training course, the cadets are imbued with the sense of responsibility, team spirit, time management, appropriate application of knowledge and lateral thinking which, according to AEMA, will remain embedded in them throughout their career.
